Directions. Look into the lower table for the year, above which you will find the dominical letter ; which found, go to the upper table for the month wanted ; and looking downwards till you meet with the dominical letter, carry your eye along the line towards the right till you find Sunday. Then look into the table of days of the month, for the day wanted ; and opposite to it, towards the left, on a line with Sunday, you will find the particular day of the week wanted. Ex. Suppose you want to know, on what day of the week the 2d Feb. 1774 happened, look into the lower table for the year 1774, and above it you will find the dominical letter to be B. Next look for February in the upper table ; and opposite to B, below February, carry your eye along the line till you the month. Then look into the table of the days of the month for the figure 2; and opposite to it towards the left, on a line with Sunday 6, you'll find Wednesday, the day of the week sought for. Any other day may be found in the same manner.

N. B. In a leap year, there are two dominical letters; the one from 1st January, to 1st March, and the other from 1st March to the end of the year. Hence in the table, there is always le i, before each leap year, a blank space, above which is the dominical letter for January and February; and above the year itself, is the dominical letter for the rest of the year.—Thus, for the year 1780, B is the dominical letter to 1st March, and A for the rest of the year.

COMMON NOTES EXPLAINED.

Cycle of the Sun is a revolution of 28 years, in which time the dominical letter and leap year return again in the same order as before.—To find the Cycle of the Sun, To the given year of our Lord add 9, (because the Cycle commenced nine years before the Christian era,); divide the sum by 28, the remainder, if any, is the Cycle of the Sun; but if there is no remainder, then 28 is the Cycle.—Ex. To 1780 add 9; divide the sum 1789 by 28, the remainder 25, is the Cycle of the Sun.

Cycle of the Moon is a revolution of 19 years, in which time the new moons return to the same day, of the months they were on before, and she begins again her course with the sun. It is called the Prime, from its use in pointing out the day of the new moon, primum Luna; and the Golden Number, as deserving to be writ in letters of gold.—To find the golden Number, Add one to the given year of our Lord, (because one year of this cycle was elapsed before the Christian æra began); divide the sum by 19, the remainder is the Golden Number; but if nothing remains, then 19 is the Golden Number.—Ex. To 1780 add 1; divide the sum 1781 by 19, the remainder 14 is the Golden Number.

Cycle of the Roman Indiction, is a revolution of 15 years, in use among the Romans, commencing the 3d year before Christ. It was instituted, A. D. 312, by Constantine; who, having reduced the time the Romans were to serve to 15 years, was consequently obliged, every 15 years, to impose [Lat. indicare] a new tax for the payment of those who were discharged.—To find this indiction, Add 3 to the given year; divide the sum by 15; the remainder, if any, is the Cycle of Indiction; but, if nothing remains, 15 is the Cycle.—Ex. To 1780 add 3, divide the sum 1783 by 15, the remainder 13 is the Cycle of Indiction.

Epact is a number which notes the excess of the common solar year above the lunar, whereby may be found out the age of the moon every year. For the solar year consisting of 365 days, the lunar but of 354, the lunations every year get 11 days before the solar year; and this excess is called the Epact.—To find the Epact, Take 1 from the Golden Number; multiply the remainder by 11; the product, if less than 30, is the Epact; but if it exceed 30, divide by 30, and the remainder is the Epact.—Ex. From 14, the Golden Number for 1780, take 1; the remainder 13 multiplied by 11, gives 143; which divide by 30, the remainder 23 is the Epact.

Dominical letter is one of the first seven letters of the alphabet, which points out in the Calendar the Sunday; throughout the year. It changes every year; and after the term of 28 years, the same letters are used again in the same order as before.—To find the dominical letter, To the given year add its fourth (not regarding the remainder, if there is any); divide the sum by 7; and the remainder, subtracted from 7, leaves the number of the letter, reckoning A 1, B 2, C 3, &c.—Ex. To 1780, add 445, its fourth; divide the sum 2225 by 7; the remainder 6 subtracted from 7 leaves 1; so that the dominical letter is A.

The Lord Lyon judges in all complaints against Messengers at Arms, for malversation in office, and has power to fine, suspend, or deprive them, according to the degree of their demerit; and all these officers are appointed by him. The Lyon has likewise the sole power of giving and distinguishing arms, or coats armorial; and he, and his brethren the Heralds, have jurisdiction in all questions concerning arms.—They have power (by act of Parliament, Chap. 21. Sec. 3. Pari. 2. Charles II.) to visit the arms of the nobility and gentry, and to prohibit persons who have no title to bear them, or whose arms are not matriculated in the Lyon records, from bearing the same, under the penalty of forfeiting to the King every thing upon which such arms shall be engraven or represented, with 100 l. Scots to the Lyon, or of being imprisoned during his pleasure. And all Magistrates, if required, are obliged to assist him in the execution of his office, under the pain of rebellion.
